For some time the Music Division has wanted to include in its music programs at the University the study and performance of chamber music. Now that the Bachelor of Music program is established, it is desirable for students to take part in chamber music as well as solo and diploma studies.

The general plan for this season is to give every senior Bachelor of Music student the opportunity to study and perform some of the great works in chamber music literature.

This course would be impractical without a basic working nucleus - a string quartet. This has been formed first and consists of four enthusiastic young string players - Elaine Mossop, Frank Dunnigan, violins, Evan Verchomin, viola, and Laszlo Takats, 'cello. This quartet is the 'working unit', so to speak, and on each program they will perform a complete string quartet. As well as this, they will combine with Bachelor of Music pianists, singers and other instrumentalists to perform various works.

There is no charge for these concerts.
